

"When The Color Left Your Face"

[Verse 1]

Every love I ever touched
Left fingerprints of bruises on my skin
Thought I was built just to break
Thought I'd only lose, never win

[Verse 2]

Then you walked in, you became my world
You made me sacred, you showed you cared you lit a fire inside me, they never did
You were my everything, my reason to live

[Pre-Chorus]

I didn't know angels could bleed
I didn't know fate could deceive

[Chorus]

Then I held you when the color left your face
Begging for God to trade me in your place
Breathing for the both of us
Don't take the only true love I've known
But you slipped away in my trembling hands
And I was left alone
Now I'm standing in the doorway of my life Still holding on,
still proud to be your wife

[Verse 3]

I whisper to your side of the bed
Pick at the threads in the shirt that you wore
Your keys still rust on the hook
When a truck pulls up, I stare at the door

[Bridge]

If I stay here inside the quiet
At least you're the last one,
the only one
I can't let no one in,
can't face the truth
Can't seem to say goodbye to you
So tell me

[Pre Chorus]

Is it betrayal just to breathe
Is it devotion if I never leave
I don't know, so I'll keep holdin' on You're the last soul I could deceive

[Final Chorus]

I held you when the color left your face
Begging for God to trade me in your place
Breathing for the both of us
Don't take the only true love I've known
But you slipped away in my trembling hands
And I was left alone
Still standing in the doorway of my life
Still yours – even after life

[Outro]

So I'll sit here, with your spirit just out of touch
I don't know how I could love again,
'Cause I love you... I know this much
